The Good Seed

Meditation

This man who sows the good seed is Jesus. With what care does the peasant prepare the seed that he intends for his field! He wants it to be of the finest quality. The chosen grain is passed through the sieve, sorted, any foreign elements or bad seed removed. Finally, before placing it in the earth, the peasant washes it again and puts it through a preparation which is meant to complete the purification and destroy any bad grain that could compromise its growth.

So does the divine sower act also. His field is the world. In this vast field, He has spread, and each day still spreads a most select seed, a pure seed without admixture: truth, grace, everything that can make man good and happy. O admirable and untiring sower! He sows everywhere and always, He spreads with abundance the most excellent gifts; He pours them into the reason, the heart and the senses of every soul of good will. He has sown His sublime teachings, His divine examples, His precious blood. He sows even now, and He will continue to sow until the end of ages by the hands of His apostles, of His Church, to whom He said, "Going therefore, teach ye all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost" (Mt. 28:19).

Such is the mission that the Church has received from her divine founder: to sow the good seed throughout the world, to take care that it grow, that it not be stifled by weeds, to bestow on it all the care necessary to help it to sprout and come to full maturity. She sows the good and can only sow the good. The men of the Church may, alas! be fallible, but the Church herself is infallible. Never can we detect the slightest error in her authentic teaching, nor the least defect, the smallest imperfection in her morals. Ah! if the action of God, if the action of the Church, His mystical spouse, met no obstacles, what a rich, what a resplendent harvest would rise up to eternity! From one end of the world to the other, we would see only nobility of soul, men loving God, devoted to their neighbor, united in the same Faith and in the practice of the same sublime and eminent virtues.

Resolutions

- 1 To recite slowly the act of charity, meditating on the words.
- 2 To lend a hand spontaneously and to have the simplicity to ask our neighbor for help.
- 3 To read in our catechism the chapter on grace.
